Head of Human Resources for Syngenta Canada

Laurie Vescio is the Head of Human Resources for Syngenta Canada where she brings the Syngenta people strategy to life for a team of 300 employees with a focus on being customer-centric and helping growers grow their best crop.

She has enjoyed a lengthy career with Syngenta and legacy companies beginning in 1994. Over the years, she has led the development and implementation of local people policies, programs and strategies that support the retention and motivation of the Canada team, while attracting new and diverse talent.

Laurie has a Business Administration Diploma from Mohawk College, and has a Graduate Certificate from the University of Toronto Rotman School of Business in Human Resources. She also holds her Certified HR Leader designation from the HR Professional Association.

Syngenta Canada is an agribusiness whose ambition is to be the most collaborative and trusted team in agriculture, providing leading seeds and crop protection innovations to enhance the prosperity of farmers and ensure the continued sustainability of agriculture.
